Our heartfelt and tireless mission is to empower children to reach their full potential. We do this through purposeful play, making the most of caregiver and parent resources, working hand-in-hand with amazingly passionate providers, and the simple goal of working hard every single day to bring new light into the life of every child.
Tulsa Sunshine Center is a pediatric therapy clinic serving infants, children, and teens. We offer Speech-Language, Occupational, Physical, and Counseling Therapy as well as Nutrition consultations. Services include evaluation, individual treatment, consultation, and group therapy, all are delivered in the most appropriate environment for the child, whether that is in day care, school, or our outpatient facility.

Many of our therapists have more than ten years of experience in pediatric therapy demonstrating a commitment to children with special needs. The team-based atmosphere at TSC fosters the exchange of ideas and promotes each therapist's abilities to clinically reason at an advanced level.

During our therapy sessions, we use toys, movement, music, swings, and whatever incentives work to motivate kids to give their best and stay attentive so they can achieve their fullest potential. We are firmly convinced that parent involvement and education are important keys to progress; therefore, our focus includes the idea that we don’t just work with children but with families, too. Our goal is to ensure that caregivers are active participants in the planning and implementation of therapy.

Children who have difficulty communicating their wants and needs are often frustrated. This can lead to serious disruption in the family circle. Speech and Language Therapy is specialized treatment designed to help children improve their communication skills through doing what they do best: playing! Simply stated, “language” refers to what a child is saying or understanding, while “speech” refers to how they are pronouncing words—or how much is being understood by listeners. Some children have difficulty communicating a message and some need help simply creating one. Our Oklahoma-licensed and nationally certified team of speech-language pathologists is here to conduct detailed evaluations and treatment sessions to open up a whole new world of communication for your child.

Social Groups

We offer speech and occupational therapy social groups in order to develop and enhance a child’s social skills under the supervision of a licensed professional. Our groups incorporate pragmatic language activities such as conversation initiation, responding to others, turn-taking, attention to tasks, and problem-solving as a group.

Dietitian Services

Dietitian Services

Medical Nutrition Therapy (MNT) provided by a pediatric Registered Dietitian (RD) can help prevent and manage diseases that affect your child’s health, fitness, and overall well-being. MNT includes a complete assessment of your child’s overall nutritional status, medical information, and history of dietary habits, followed by development of a personalized treatment plan.

A New Sense of Belonging

We offer speech and occupational therapy social groups in order to develop and enhance a child’s social skills under the supervision of a licensed professional. Our groups incorporate pragmatic language activities such as conversation initiation, responding to others, turn-taking, attention to tasks, and problem-solving as a group.
This area of our expertise focuses on one-on-one or family interaction to improve mental health and quality of life. The counseling department at Tulsa Sunshine Center uses a variety of therapy methods including Parent-Child Interaction Therapy (PCIT), individual counseling, family counseling, and play therapy.

PCIT (Parent Child Interaction Therapy) is a 12- to 16-week therapy designed to increase cooperation and attention and improve family relationships.

Individual Counseling involves one-on-one counseling services in a safe environment. Our therapists can help your child work through tough situations, such as stress, anxiety, depression from divorce, death of a family member, abuse, trauma, and emotional and behavioral issues. They can help kids develop problem-solving skills and coping strategies.

Family Counseling involves parents or guardians and children meeting with a therapist together. Discussions may include advice about life skills, practice in good communication, and development of plans and goals for improvement.

Play Therapy is an approach in which the child gains a sense of control by being allowed to lead activities in a structured environment. It helps children understand, identify, and cope with their own feelings, which can lead to improvements in social skills, self-esteem, and confidence in decision-making.

When is Behavioral Health Therapy needed?
- Apathy toward activities they once loved
- Sudden drop in grades
- Frequent outbursts or defiance
- Any other perceived negative changes

Such behavior often arises from:
- Difficulty in family relationships
- Life changes (death, divorce, birth of siblings)
- Adjustments to new environments
- Anxiety, depression, or both

Maggie Krepps ★★★★★
“It’s taken a lot of stress off of my grandson because he’s able to communicate and do more things. It gives him confidence to tell us what he wants.”

“My daughters have received speech, occupational, and physical therapy here for over three years. I could not be more satisfied with the care they receive. We have noticed so many improvements since beginning therapy here. The therapists are wonderful and truly care about the children and don’t treat it as a “job” to be done but instead treat the therapy time as an opportunity to help the kids in every way possible. Support staff are always courteous, efficient, and professional. They also go the extra mile to make the kids in the waiting room feel special. I would not take my children anywhere else.”

Laura Elaine ★★★★★
“I have taken my son with ASD to TSC for Occupational Therapy for the last year and a half. We have had good results with both therapists teaching him important cognitive, behavioral, social, and life skills. Office staff is friendly and efficient, and the center is clean and well maintained. I’m very happy with the services he’s received there.”

Vladimir and Stefanie Levin ★★★★★
“My four-year-old autistic son with SPD has blossomed under the care of the therapists he loves so much. They always remember the areas he struggles with, encouraging him both in strengths and through weaknesses. He misses the center whenever we go out of town. After exhausting avenues of caring for him myself until I found the center, it’s been an incredible relief and true joy to know that I can completely trust his therapists with his care as well as for their information and education. I never stop being amazed at the knowledge they hold when it comes to his care.

We believe every child deserves to be included in the play and learning of everyday life and to experience all the simple joys of being. Our collaborative therapy services offer practical and proven solutions to help every child reach his or her fullest potential. We’re here to help. Simply reach out today to rise and shine.

We’d love to help your family.
